    The Benefits of Bus Travel
    It's greener to get around by bus – buses help tackle air pollution by taking cars off the road

    A fully loaded double-decker bus can take 75 cars off the road
If everyone switched just one car journey a month to the bus, there would be one billion fewer car journeys on our roads, and a saving of 2 million tonnes of CO2[i]

    Buses are vital to improving air quality. The latest models deliver a 95% reduction in NOx emissions compared to previous bus models[ii] Diesel cars are the biggest contributor to road transport NOx emissions in the UK, contributing 41% of emissions compared with 30% for diesel vans and just 6% for buses and coaches[iii]

    Travelling by bus can be a less stressful way to travel and free up valuable time

    Travelling by bus is good for your health. It is a third less stressful than commuting by car Taking the bus frees your hands and your head, allowing you to catch up on life admin, read a book or play games on your mobile.
    Walking to the bus stop can, on average, help you achieve half the Government's recommended 30 minutes of exercise per day
    A third of drivers consider driving a chore because of high fuel costs and increased congestion.

    The bus is good value for everyone
    Bus commuters help tackle congestion, which costs the UK economy at £11 billion each year
    Bus commuters generate £64 billion of benefits to the UK economy

    Tackling loneliness & other social benefits

    A third (33 per cent) of Britons admit that they deliberately catch the bus to have some human contact[iv]
    Young people are more reliant on the bus than any other group – more than 50% of 16-19 year olds use the bus regularly[v] Jobseekers are heavily dependent on the bus, with 77% having no regular access to a car, van or motorcycle, rising to 87% among 16-24 year olds[vi]

Buses are crucial to family life. 41% of passengers said they believed they would spend less time with family without access to the bus[vii] Buses help local communities to thrive by keeping local people connecting and strengthening community ties.
